L. B. WARSHALL,

There are thrilling stories told since the fire of hair-breadth escapes, of wonderful cases of endurance, of heart-rending accounts of suffer ing, and of bold deeds, but there are none of them more wonderful than the one told by Patrick Gallegley, formerly a member of com-pany C., 55th Illinois Infantry. Let me tell it as near as I can in his own words: "I was after fighting the fire to the best of my ability, when I axed meself, 'Pat, hadn't you better go Smith. home?' I started for the North Side, crossing State street landge, and turned down on Ken- T. STANTON. zie street. There was a hook and ladder company about to be burned up, wid never a borse, and the byes shouting like blazes for the crowd to help e'm out of the proynicament. I axed meself hadn't I better assist the byes, and then a lot of us nulled the truck out of the dauger. But I was glad when I found it was Sandy Snay's truck, and Saudy axed me would I Snay's truck, and Saudy axed me would I stay and help him. Begorra, I forgot all about home then, and hullybulloo we scooted across Reporter—W. P. D. Bush, Wells street bridge, and turned down Lake street till we came to Clark street. There was a sight for you, was that I never saw the like: of before, and, for that matter, no more do any wan in this warrald. The five was racing this way and that way, and divil take me if could see our way through it all for the crown of people, and the wagons and the hot cinders which burnt a hole in the top of me craneyum. When we got in front of the Sherman House that foine building was breaking out with the disaster. Seeing we couldn't stop it, we were driving off, when there sounded above the storm of flame and the roaring, murmuring Board School Trust sound of many voices the sharp cry of a wo man, and there was a lady at wan of the win-dies on the third story. Well, begorra, I don't know how those long ladders ever went up against the building, or how it was I was the first to go up the labler, but I was. When I got near the windy, there was a blaze flew out of another windy, and divil the lie there is it it if it dida't set the tail of me cout on fire. pulled it off immagately, not thinking I should nave more manners than to call on an elegant lady in me coat slaves. Presently I got up as far as the windy, and, as sure as me names Pat, if the buly hadn't disappeared. Then I pulled myself on the windy sill, and, bad luck to it, but I lost my balance and mundled into the room. Just then the floor gave way, and I went down to the bottom of the Sharman House faster nor I would had I been in the elevator. When I stopped-ind I wasn't long a don' it—if I hadn't landed in front of a door leading from a saloon in the basement; and you better belave I got out with great rapid.

AN AUSTRALIAN ROMANCE .- Australia is a convenient region of rom mee, being too distant for close investigation by the skeptical. For example: An English nobleman falls in leve with his mother's pretty maid-a sort o Becky Sharp. She avoids her noble lover and complains that she is "persecuted." So mileof takes a year's trip in Europe, becomes "lovesick as well as sea-sick crossing the Channel, and writes her an offer of marriage. She doubts; he swears fileity, and marries her privately. A daughter is born, the wother dies and the father weds again. Twenty-five years clapse; the girl talls in love with one who loss the misfortune to kill his superior and is transported. She follows him to Botany Bay. In an "unfortumte affair" her lover loses his life, and his disconsolate haly-love becomes a handmaiden in the house of a possettler. Her father dies chibliess; a persever ing solicitor seeks the dauguter so long disowned, and she becomes Lady Elizabeth Morton, with $200,000 a year.

The RATS AND EGGS.—A holy has a number of fine hens, to which she had devoted a good deal of care and attention during the winter, in hopes of chtaining an early and fair crop of fresh eggs, was surprised at the megre result actually reached. The heas made noise, in KENTUCKY RIVER, singing and cackling enough for every day layers, and yet only occasionally did she get an egg. The lady at length determined to wateb operations, and ascertain, if possible, the cause of the failure. She saw the hens go npon the nest, but if she was not present when they came off no egg was found. At length constant watching and waiting solved the mistery. A day or two since, a hen came off the nest and commenced cackling. Almost instantly an ohi rat came out of a hole, and running into a barrel, which was thrown on its side, and in which the hen's nest was, at once nosed the egg out on the ground, then lay aswn upon its back, and getting the egg between its fore paws and nose, commenced squealing, when two other rats came out, and, taking the rat by the hind legs, dragged it, egg and all, into the hole. The lady allirus that she can substantiate the foregoing fact by at least three witnesses.—Poultry Standard.
